FOURTEEN TO FILE FOR CAMPBELL CITY OFFICES

Campbell Man Relates Story Of Two Month Visit To Japan This Winter

A glimpse of life in Japan was revealed by Bill Noda of 22 E. Latimer Avenue on his return from a two-month trip to the eastern islands earlier this month. Bill, who left last November to visit members of his family and to get married, had journeyed to the home of his family approximately eight months earlier in the year. He visited Fukushima, approximately nine hours train ride to the north of Tokyo and Osaka, second largest city of Japan.

While the standard of living is considerably lower in Japan than in the United States, Noda stated that recovery from war damage is making good but slow progress. Average monthly salary for a woman is between $15 and $35 while a man's salary is betweeen $75 and $100 a month. The low average salary, however, does not affect the price of food and clothing, and Noda states that prices on the two items are similar to prices of the same products in the United States.

Noda was impressed by the effect the American occupation forces have had on the way of life of the average Japanese and stated that perhaps the greatest change has come in the adoption of western manners. Both men and women are adopting American manners and customs and many of the newspapers now run daily columns about western social manners.

The introduction of the art of Picasso has met with vast success in Japan and many manufacturers are now naming various brands after the famous painter. It is not uncommon to see "Picasso Lipstick" or lotion prominently displayed in stores throughout the cities.

Western influence has brought about intensive experimentation with Television in the country, but the heavy strain placed on power reserves is holding up home television. Occupation troops are using so much of the power that current for domestic use falls far below the recommended wattage for television sets. Curent experimentation is concerned with developing a less expensive set that will operate on the reduced current.

Noda left Japan for his return trip shortly before Christmas, but stated that he was impressed by the number of Christmas trees and ornaments which were for sale in the stores. Another odd fact which impressed him was the sight of Japanese men and women whistling American Christmas carols and other popular American songs.

While a great number of American goods are on the market, the price is still too high for the average Japanese to purchase any quantity. Coffee imported from the United States costs more than three dollars a pound. Automobiles are scarce because of their prohibitive cost, but more and more Japanese are operating two-seater motor scooters.

Another American habit which has found large acceptance in the island country is the drinking of milk by the common people. Noda reports that the butter marketed in Japan is of a quality far better than that made in America. Oleo is widely used and compares favorably in both price and quality with the American product.

The dominant factor in Japanese life is not in shortage of materials, but in their high cost. The average citizen cannot afford more than one set of clothes, and while rice and sugar is rationed to small amounts, the authorities do not prosecute violations on the black market to any great extent. Manufactured items such as eyeglasses, binoculars and cameras seem to be fairly plentiful and quite reasonable.

Noda stated that he saw practically no evidence of communist organizing or activitiy and related that the government is imposing heavy penalties on anyone taking part in communist activities. Smuggling, particularly in the narcotics trade, is prevalent, but government policing is keeping it to a minimum.

Despite the small number of theaters in Japan (2,646 for a population of approximately 80 million) their attendance is large and a majority of the films shown are either "westerns" or American historical stories which feature pictures of the countryside.

Because of the lack of suitable private transportation, public carrier systems have blossomed forth and have formed an extensive network over the larger cities. Noda reports that more taxis are to be seen in Japan than in any other nation which he has visited. Buses and trolleys form a system which is equalled only by that of metropolitan American cities. While they do not bring their passenger within a block of his destination as they do in many American cities, the transportation system is such that the passenger is still within a short distance of his goal.

The influence of the American occupation forces, American merchandise and American films has made such a great mark on the Japanese that most of them are eager to learn more of the United States and many are seeking a means to visit here. A few other western nations have opened their doors to Japanese immigration, such as Brazil, which has a quota of 5000 per year, but the principal problems center around money for transportation to these countries and means of support upon arrival.

Noda is now making arrangements with the American consul to bring his wife to the United States and anticipates her arrival here sometime this summer.

NEW SNAG IN CONSTRUCTION OF TILSON SHOPPING CENTER LOOMS

Another block to construction of a shopping center planned by subdividers Tilson and Sanfilippo on Quito Road and Saratoga Avenue loomed as three San Jose business men asked the Superior Court to review action of the county board of supervisors granting a permit for construction last December. The three business men, operators of the Quito Center, located on Cox Avenue, approximately a half mile from the proposed Tilson Center, are Ernest Renzel Jr., Fred H. Smith and Werner Stern. They asked the court to issue a writ of certiorari, banning any further action by county governmental bodies regarding the Tilson Center and asking the court to review all proceedings held before the County Planning Commission and board of supervisors.

The three men claimed that the supervisors acted illegally in overruling a 4-1 denial of the plan by the County Planning Commission.

This latest action came when it appeared that Tilson and Sanfilippo had finally won the go ahead signal after more than two years of battling before the planning commission and supervisors.

Original Press Subscriber Recalls Early Days Of Campbell History

A picture of Campbell at the turn of the century was revealed by Robert Sholz, one of the original subscribers to the Campbell Press, in an interview this week. Sholz, who moved to his Budd Avenue residence in 1891 at the age of five, has been a continuous subscriber to the Campbell Press since the first issue was published under the name of the Campbell Weekly Visitor on June 7, 1895. Sholz has watched the paper grow from its original four-column, 15-inch page to its present size.

Population of the central district of Campbell when Sholz moved here was approximately 100, and he recalls that only two merchants were in business at that time. Watson's Drygoods Store was located on the site of the present Campbell Hotel and the other business, the Farmers' Union, general merchandise store, was located where Field's Store now stands. Most of East Campbell Avenue consisted of orchard land with several residences facing the main street.

The only means of transportation to San Jose was by horse and buggy and Sholz states that he recalls the trips which the two merchants made to San Jose to bring stock and groceries for their businesses.

Charley Berry, now a resident of San Jose, was the railroad agent in Campbell at the time of Sholz's arrival. The old Berry residence now houses the Stoner Agricultural Laboratory on South Second Street. The Campbell Grammar school, which Sholz attended, was located on the northeast corner of Rincon and Winchester Road, while the first separate high school building was constructed on the south side of Campbell Avenue across from the present grammar school in 1903. At that time, Teddy Roosevelt planted the redwood tree which still stands there in a dedication ceremony.

The first location of the postoffice was next to Field's store. From the present site of the Campbell Methodist Church to Winchester road was orchard lands, while land lying between the railroad tracks and the Los Gatos creek was made up by the Rucker orchard. Roads were narrower and had no paving, and the bridge across the creek was of wooden construction. The few sidewalks in the town were constructed of wood also.

Later developments saw the formation of the Campbell Food Growers Union on the site of the present Campbell Co-op Dryer in 1894 and about 1900 the first bank came to Campbell in the building on the corner of E. Campbell and Central. It later moved to the building now occupied by Jeffers clothing store. In 1920, the Campbell Growers Bank was formed.

The first telephone office was located on the site now occupied by the Parker House and was started in 1896. Mrs. Louise Wittenberg was the first manager.

Sholz recalls some of the more important events of the years,

Gas and electricity are cheap in California!

Most California cotton is grown in the fertile San Joaquin Valley

Low-cost power helps grow California's fabulous cotton

Cotton is California's most valuable crop. This season it will bring over $400 million to farmers of the state. Everyone benefits, for at least 40% of the business in all California cities is based on agriculture. One reason for the state's great agricultural prosperity is abundant power for pumping irrigation water, at rates so low that P. G. and E. electricity is only 3½% of the average crop production cost.

Take Rural Power for example:

COST OF A KILOWATT HOUR

Average P. G. and E. price . . . . 1.54¢

Average price in rest of U. S. . . . 2.48¢

P. G. and E. rates for rural areas, as well as for city homes, are far below the U. S. average.

March Of Dimes Drive Gets $475

The Campbell High School student-directed March of Dimes campaign totals have reached $475.65, a spokesman for the group revealed this week. Of that amount, $88 has been turned in by three organizations of the Hi-Y, Tri-L house to house canvass. Two collections in the high school have brought $157 and a collection at the Campbell-Los Gatos basketball game last Friday night brought $26.15. A spokesman stated that no containers placed in merchants' stores have been picked up. The total includes collections from only the Campbell Elementary school, and, as yet, none of the the other grammar schools have reported in. No totals have been received yet from the various lodges and clubs which have been contacted either.

The campaign will be terminated next week when students pick up containers in merchants' stores and receive totals from various areas which have not yet reported in.

Buc matmen proved themselves worthy of the champions with an upset victory over a favored Fremont team last Friday afternoon. With far less individual talent than their opponents, the Bucs' team spirit came to the fore and proved the difference. Losing only four out of eleven matches, the locals came through in the clutch to down a previous unstoppable Indian team. In three of the four bouts which Campbell lost, they were pitting men who had less than a top rating against the best the Indians had to offer. The real story of the victory was in the work of the old standbys who rarely see their names splattered throughout the news columns. In every case they came through with the necessary points to give their team a victory.

Additional praise is due to two of the Buc matmen who were pitted against far superior talent. Despite their loss, they had the spirit to stick it out and give up only a decision rather than the extra two points awarded for a pin. Closest round of the match was the bout between Carl Vossler and Garrett of Fremont. Both lads gave and took in equal quantities until the 127-pound Campbellman finally outpointed his opponent, 10-9, for a decision. The locals will meet Lick on February 8 for the deciding match of the tournament.

Received word via the grapevine this week that Campbell is the home of a former contender for the world's lightweight boxing title. Ray Stroppa of Hawthorne Street, who fought under the name of Johnny Stroppa back in the early thirties, tangled with Wesley Ramey back in 1934. At that time, Ramey was one of the principal contenders for the lightweight crown. Ray, however, played it smart and retired from the game while he was still ahead. Today he's living on Hawthorne and has three sons, Arnold, Fred and Victor, all of whom are attending Campbell schools.

Jots and Dots for the week include an 18-24 victory by the Moreland "A" cage squad over Saratoga and a loss by the B squad to the Saratogans...McCune Citrus came from behind in the second quarter to trounce the Willow Glen Zelators 29-45 in A league competition ... Tony's Busy Bee rolled over Jones Service Station squad 40-30 with little trouble.

CATS NIP BUCS IN CAGE TILT

The Los Gatos Wildcats broke loose Friday night to roll over a hapless Buc varsity cage squad in their traditional meeting on the local courts, 53-32. High point honors for the contest went to the Wildcat center, Chuck Stewart, with 12 tallies. Jack Harris of Campbell folowed him with a total of 11.

In the preliminaries, the local 130's toppled a fighting Los Gatos squad, 30-38 as Bucs Dick Jordan and Denny Kelly led the scoring with a total of ten digits each.

BUC MATMEN UPSET FREMONT IN THRILLER FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Campbell wrestlers rose to the top of the expert's ladder with their rough and tough upset victory over a strong Fremont Indian squad on the local mats, 21-14, last Friday afternoon. With only one pin marking the match, the locals came from behind several times to vanquish the team that threatened to spoil a perfect Buc record.

High point of the match was the final round when Gleed met Dowghty in the unlimited division. Campbell led 18-14 and a pin by the favored Dowghty would have given the match to the Indians. Gleed, however, outpointed his opponent to win a decision and the winning three points.

The Indian defeat was the first they had suffered in the 1952 season and brought the Bucs to the top of the ladder with Lick matmen.

MARKETING PROGRAMS

Marketing order programs, under both State and Federal laws, are instituted by producers and handlers of particular farm commodities to raise unduly depressed prices. Because of this fact, some consumers get the idea that these programs are schemes to force the public to pay higher prices than they should.

This conclusion is not true, as the facts abundantly prove. Both State and Federal statutes authorizing marketing programs permit use of measures limiting the volume of the commodity marketed only so long as the price is below parity or an equivalent.

AID INDIVIDUAL FARMERS

As Guy Black, University of California College of Agriculture, points out: "Market programs ... permit a number of free and independent individuals to do some of the things that they would be able to do if they were in fact united under one management."

Producers can do only some of the things under a market order they would be able to do if a single management controlled all of the production of a particular commodity.

The very nature of farming, with production subject to the hazards of weather, pests, and uncertain seasonal labor supply, imposes handicaps upon the farmer that are largely unknown to the manufacturers of most consumer goods. To overcome some of these handicaps, farmers employ marketing orders. They seek to regulate the flow of the product being marketed to avoid glutting the market, regulate the quality of the product to assure the consumer receiving acceptable merchandise, and stimulate consumer demand through trade promotion, education, and advertising.

FEW CROPS AFFECTED

Of California's some 220 agricultural crops, less than 40 are marketed under marketing order programs. Two-thirds of these provide principally for maintenance of minimum standards of quality, eliminating substandard or immature products. A third of them provide for surplus controls, or the regulation of the volume of product being marketed. A number authorize limited product and market research.

Black points out that marketing programs, to be effective, must be based upon sound economics and must have the cooperative participation of the producers and handlers affected.

Even then, he says, "the most that can ever be expected is what it would be reasonable to expect a single, unified management to be able to do and, of course, even a monopoly cannot come out on top of every situation."

What he means, of course, is that in the end the public's reaction to the product and its price determines whether or not the producer-handler group operating under a marketing order has acted wisely. The public just doesn't buy a particular commodity if it is priced out of line or the quality is unacceptable.

A successfuly operated market program must protect the public interest as well as serve the best interests of producers.

INSTALLED PRESIDENT

Anthony Turturici was installed vice-president of the Mayfair Riders at a business meeting held recently at their Reed Avenue, San Jose, club house. New members accepted into the group included three Campbell residents, Frank Arnando and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Salice.

WASHINGTON AND

"SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

The Federal Trade Commission tire ruling effective in April furnishes a pattern by which monopoly growth may be curbed.

While the evils of the tire industry are perhaps more spectacular percentage-wise, the same practices are being followed in other industries to the detriment not only of free trade, but also to the public.

C. W. Harder

The FTC order you'll hear a lot about rules there is a limit to the preferential discount that any dealer is entitled to for volume purchases.

The order sets up a 20,000 pound carload as the maximum quantity any dealer needs take at one time to qualify for the maximum discount allowed by the manufacturer.

An FTC study initiated in 1947 through the efforts of the National Federation of Independent Business, brought to light some startling figures.

In 1947 there were slightly more than 48,000 tire dealers in the country, buying from 21 manufacturers. 98% of these dealers, or slightly more than 47,000, do 52% of the business. In 1926 98% of the dealers did 90% of the business, and there were more dealers.

However, as the report showed, these 47,000 dealers on whom the majority of the nation's auto owners rely, have been severely penalized.

* * *

There are 63 dealers, or less than 1/5 of 1% who sell 30% of the tires, and they receive preferential discounts from the manufacturers of from 26 to 40% more than the independent dealers. This means that dealer profits on some tires amounted to two-thirds of the price, but only 63 dealers were allowed this profit.

* * *

In making this ruling, the FTC invoked a section of the Robinson-Patman Act, for the first time in the 16 years it has been enacted into law.

Of interest in this fight which started when the House Small Business Committee in 1927, urged by George Burger, N.F.I.B. vice president, called upon Justice Department and the FTC to investigate the situation, is the bitter delaying action fought by the Big 4: Goodrich, Goodyear, Firestone and U.S. Rubber.

They fought to the end, despite the fact that on the face of the evidence, it would appear they would welcome the opportunity to cut discounts to a favored few outlets.

Neither can it be presumed the Big 4 has been selling to these few preferred customers at a loss. Therefore, the only conclusion that can be placed on their opposition is that the public has long been overcharged for tires.

* * *

The Office of Price Stabilization, better known as the Office of Price Scuttling, has announced this ruling upsets their procedure and indicates they may attempt to block enforcement.

Such action, however, could reveal information showing conclusively that despite all the propaganda for monopoly on the grounds that the public is saved money it will be proved the public "pays through the nose" for this type of business control.

stating that the earthquake of 1906 knocked the Campbell Water Co. tanks down which contained between sixty and eighty thousand gallons of water. On March 5 of 1911, portions of the Los Gatos Creek broke out of the creek bed and flooded most of the city of Campbell. All of East Campbell Avenue was under water and about one and a half feet of water covered Winchester Road.

First cannery in town was started about 1892 and was called the Ainsley Cannery. It was later joined by the Hyde Canning Co. The vacant lot on the corner of E. Campbell Avenue and Dillon was occupied by the Gilman Haybarns.

One of the largest fires in its history struck Campbell in 1917 and burned several residences between First street and Central Avenue on the south side of East Campbell Avenue. Sholz states that the heat from the fire was so great that many of the houses across the street were scorched by the flames.

Sholz, who is a retired orchardist, still occupies the original house which was built by his family when they moved here. He still owns the original 30 acres which were included in the tract. He was instrumental in the founding of both the Campbell Cooperative Dryer and the local unit of the California Prune and Apricot Growers' Association and now serves as secretary of both organizations.

San Tomas Teacher Emphasizes Poetry

Poetry writing is no mystery to pupils to Mrs. Leora Emig's fourth grade at San Tomas school. The following poem, written recently by a student of her last year's class, is, she says, a sample of the work an interested child can do.

Fond of poetry herself, Mrs. Emig takes time now and then in language and social studies period to get students to express their impressions in poetry.

SPRING IS COMING

The winds do sigh and the breezes say
"Spring is coming; it's on the way."
Bluebirds sing with hearts so light,
Hummingbirds hum in the morning bright.
Woodpecekrs drum their notes of cheer,
Daffodils say that spring is here.
In the garden, lilacs bloom
And nod to the roses, they'll be here soon.
Tulips nod their graceful heads
To the cool soft breeze in their garden beds.
Winter is gone, Spring has come to stay
Happy children come out to play.
